

Pistachio Street Food Festival

The street food festival in Berlin to celebrate pistachio in all its shapes and forms

Pistachio is loved all throughout the world's cuisines and has an extraordinary feature: it fits well with both savory dishes and sweet desserts. Once pistachio is involved, everything looks more appetizing and beautiful to see, but yet, it has never had its own gastronomic festival to be celebrated the way it deserves. However, the Pistachio Street Food Festival is ready to fill this gap on the 28th and 29th of August at the Jules B-Part, inside Berlin's Gleisdreieck park. Each stand that participates will present their dishes with pistachio: arancini, empanadas, pizza, panzerotti, beef steak, crusted tuna, tiramisù, cannoli, ceviche, baklava, octopus burgers, ice cream, granita and more. There will be many different representatives from all around the world, all with the goal to celebrate the best street food dishes enriched with this new exceptional ingredient. In order to guarantee everyone's safety, visitors have to show a negative test result, a complete vaccination or a certificate of healing (a test centre will be set up at the entrance).

About the event. Approximately 15 stands and food trucks will participate in the event. Many will be Italian, or more specifically, Sicilian (like Duo Sicilian Ice Cream and Tipico Siciliano) who will prepare delicious meals with the addition of the very notorious Bronte Pistachio. However, there will also be some representatives from the Turkish, Persian and other cuisines from which pistachio is also a fundamental ingredient. The event will host a DJ-set and a live performance but that's not all. The green colour will have a very important role during the manifestation, entry will cost 3 euros (children under the age of 12 will enter for free), but those who will arrive with a full on green outfit (except shoes) will also enter for free. All participants will also have the opportunity to participate in an Instagram photography contest to try and win a 50 euro coupon for the Duo Sicilian Food Shop (pistachio pesto and creams).
